Founder Matthew Miller's Hamptons home

By Ty Wenzel

There's nothing like being an interior design fanatic and getting to see an amazing interior designer's own home. Matthew Miller, originally an architect and now the proprietor of StudioLAB, based in Union Square in Manhattan, is no stranger to the Hamptons.

Once the Hamptons is in one's blood, it can feel like more than a luxury, a necessity. Farmer's markets, pastoral core-memory scenes embedded in your brain, the epic beaches... the list goes on and on. Miller and his wife spent summers in the Hamptons where they lived above his mother's Bridgehampton home's detached garage in a 400 square foot studio. That's all fine and good until the kids start being born and a solution becomes necessary.

The answer was a 1985 saltbox of 1,400 square foot home with a pool, on about 1.3 acres of forested land in Sagaponack. Expanding it to 3,100 square feet was the right size for them and clearing space for a lawn made it complete. They even moved the pool to expand the house.

Miller, who received his Bachelors of Architecture in 2003 from the University of Southern California, retained most of the original house by keeping it in one wing that contains three bedrooms and a playroom. Renovating by reflecting its shape to the other wing, he added the kitchen, dining room, and primary suite. Connecting the two wings with a center bridge, he was able to execute on a double-height living room.

There are various styles mingling together effortlessly — modern farmhouse, Scandinavian, minimalist, mid-century modern — with crisp white walls and marble, juxtaposed by black windows, fixtures, kitchen stools, and doors. The whitewashed white-oak floors and shiplap paneling allow the famous Hamptons light to fill every room. The exterior features white cedar-shake siding, which is a perfect backdrop for the black trimmed windows.

Furnishings include a mix of affordable pieces from retailers like Ikea, Pottery Barn, and West Elm, as well as a few, more expensive statement pieces the couple had long coveted, like a CH25 lounge chair by Hans J. Wegner that elevates the living room with its MCM appeal.

Miller served as the general contractor and managed all the subcontractors himself — mind blown.

Lucie Ayres

Nostalgically unflustered

By Ty Wenzel

2 Interiors is a women-run full-service, award-winning interior design agency with residential and commercial projects throughout the nation. Headquartered in Los Angeles, they recently entered the Hamptons circuit with a property added to their vast portfolio of over 240 completed projects. They have earned several awards. Some of their standout distinctions include the 2018 HGTV Best Kitchen Award and Houzz's Best of Design and Best Service award, a distinction they've won for several years since 2015.

In addition to residential work, their commercial clients include a well-known fitness chain to law firms and hedge funds on both coasts. One would imagine a modernist design aesthetic, but Lucie Ayres, the Prague-born founder and principal designer, with her extensive travels, has a distinctly painterly European style with a hint of Californian pop. It translates to soothing, prosperous, and inspired.

Last August, Ayres completed their first Hamptons project — an Amagansett new build farmhouse that feels like another time and place once inside. The client desired a more pastoral country home rather than a beach house. They were so enamored by the new interior that they moved their family there full time.

Upon first inspection, the home has a bucolic feeling throughout — but look closely and you will notice unusual pops of color, a custom Hamptons-centric wallpaper, basketweave objects, shiplap ceilings, and vintage-like daybeds, wrought-iron, and tailored headboards.

Neutral walls from white to sisal modern wallpaper perform the balanced canvas to classic furnishings with every room showcasing at least one pop of color to break the achromatic color story. French doors that lead to the outdoor space, a Tuscan cutting board, Tall camel-hued curtains from the living quarters to the bedrooms tie the story together.

The neutral color story is shocked into focus with various shades of greens — the accent color of 2022. The home's cottage mood lends its style to chandeliers, headboards, textiles, and accessories like vintage tennis rackets, horseshoes, and other objet d'arts. Ayres' Amagansett interior pulls its habitants into a lost time and place that always feels nostalgically unflustered with her touch of casually curated California.

Fall Fashion In The Hamptons

By Lisa Frohlich of Hamptons NY Style

Fall is my favorite season when it comes to styling. The thought of wrapping up in a cozy sweater and swapping out my sandals for a pair of chunky boots is a welcomed change. Local stores on the East End have exciting new merchandise to help update your wardrobe. Here are some easy and functional fall trends to keep your eye on as we head into cooler weather.

Chunky Knit Sweaters: Roomy turtleneck sweaters, comfy cable-knit pieces, and mohair cardigans are all in the mix. Sailor stripes look great in a loose-knit weave sweater.

Maxi Coats: Exaggerated proportions play a role for coats this season. Big, welcoming coats in a variety of colors and textures will keep you warm and stylish.

Oversized Pants: When it comes to fall bottoms, the baggier the pant, the better. This trend is a callback to the '90s and I am loving it. Pair a fitted top with baggy bottoms to balance the look.

Heavy-Duty Boots: Grunge and punk will return in the form of "tough" boots. Combat, Motorcycle, and Chelsea Boots will be styled with pretty much anything—dresses, denim, and trousers.

Cashmere Feather yarn cardigan with Swarovski crest, price upon request, available at Brunello Cucinelli

BRUNELLO CUCINELLI

Fall trends that East Hampton Store Manager Judy Springer is excited about: "Cozy knitwear, a warm autumnal color palette, and rich plaids making for luxe casual wear."

Fall pieces you can't live without: "Double-faced cashmere outerwear, cashmere sets, and a great selection of tweed blazers. For special occasions, Opera knitwear is a must. Every piece is uniquely handmade, and the craftsmanship is incredible."

What a perfect autumn day looks like in East Hampton: "Crisp and clear with a relaxed, sophisticated, small-town vibe."

Giving Back: Brunello Cucinelli is very involved on the East End. Most recently Brunello Cucinelli made a product donation to the SoulCycle charity ride benefiting Project ALS. They also held a shopping event to benefit the Eleanor Whitmore Early Childhood Center, which provides affordable, high-quality childcare and early education programs on the East End.

Martyna's perfect autumn day on the East End: "Taking a day trip to Shelter Island for a bike ride and lunch at Marie Eiffel. Ending the day with a cozy glass of wine by our fire pit."

Giving Back: Tenet donates gift cards to local charities such as Maureen's Haven which helps the homeless on the East End.

Fall pieces Crystal can't live without: "An oversized blazer, a pair of modern oversized sunglasses frames, and your new favorite pair of baggy jeans. Don't forget to throw in a pop of color — try hot pink leather gloves or shoes."

Crystal's perfect autumn day on the East End: "Layering everyone up and taking my family to the beach. There is nothing like a crisp walk on the beach and then a quick bite at one of my new favorite local spots Dopo il Ponte in Bridgehampton."

Bike The Hamptons

Hamptons hotels with complimentary bicycles for guests

By Vanessa Gordon

The Hamptons is one of the most scenic regions in New York state for biking. If I had to pick one way to explore the beauty and bounty of the East End, I would venture off on two wheels. A great perk of staying at one of several Hamptons hotels is complimentary access to their own bikes. Skip the busy traffic and parking woes by traveling through the charming towns and villages on a bicycle. Here is a selection of Hamptons hotels that offer complimentary bicycles for guests to use.

This luxurious boutique hotel offers a wide array of elegant amenities, like a complimentary seated breakfast at Jean-Georges, the onsite restaurant.
